

Meeting the demands of tomorrows' markets today - Photovoltaics Center Kolitzheim

The complex demands of the pv market demand for comprehensive solutions that can not be provided by a single company. To be able to do just that, we work together with our partner companies. Through the various specialty areas of the companies, we can now cover all the important sectors of the market: Sales & Distribution for re-sellers and end-customers alike, installation, research & development and the realization of large-scale projects.

Clearly, we are not only focused on establishing all different distribution channels but also on the development of innovative technological solutions that help make solar power more efficient and more affordable. This includes a leading role in the use of thin-film solar modules and the development of efficiency-enhancing technologies such as the TEAM inverter system.
